Pollution Group Urges Postponement of Extension Of Outfall Pipe for Bay

Sharply questioning the scientific wisdom of installing a lengthy outfall pipe in Carmel Bay without adequate prior studies, the Monterey Committee for Environmental Information (MCEI), sub-committee on Water Pollution, suggests that construction of a secondary sewage disposal plant proceed, but urges the proposed extension of an outfall pipe 600 feet out into Carmel Bay be postponed for at least a year.

The committee, composed of Monterey Peninsula area scientists and professional persons, issued the suggestions after a study of available information on the geology of Carmel Bay and its current patterns. It was learned that some studies indicate that even if the outfall pipe was several times as long as the proposed one, the effluent could end up on the beach at San Jose Creek and on the shores of Point Lobos.

The committee believes there is not presently enough information available to make an intelligent decision on where to locate the outfall outlet.

In addition, the committee found little information concerning the effect on the Bay of effluent of sewage given secondary treatment. By making a one year study of water currents in Carmel Bay and the effect of the secondary treated effluent on the bay and life in and alongside it, a final decision based on more solid facts could be made regarding Carmel's sewage disposal.

Concurrently, a study should be performed to evaluate the feasibility of a total water recycling system. Finally, it seems technically unwise to increase the sewage burden on the existing facility until the new data is generated. The committee suggests a moratorium on all activities that would add to this burden.

The committee points out that Carmel Bay waters have a special beneficial use as a marine refuge which will be enhanced with the establishment of the proposed Point Lobos Underwater State Park. The Sanitary District officials have a responsibility to assure that decisions they make will not adversely affect use of that park.

The committee cited studies made by Hopkins Marine Station on current patterns in Carmel Bay. They found no adequate studies of seasonal behavior in bay current patterns. Nor could the committee find any evidence that effluent would not accumulate at points that would endanger the natural environment and reduce the values of adjacent public and private property.

Legal Aid Gets Funds

Congressman Burt Talcott announced in Washington last week the granting of $90,064 for legal services to the Monterey Legal Aid Society.

The Federal Grant is being made through the Office of Economic Opportunity of Monterey County.

Attorney Jane Van Hook, director of the Legal Aid Office in Seaside was elated when informed of the grant and said that it would be of great help in helping the poor in the area with their legal problems.

Seasiders Win Army Recognition

Several Seaside residents have received recognition from the U.S. Army for their excellent performance as civilian employees at Ft. Ord. John C. Doughty, 784-A Ponderosa Street, has received a step increase in pay for quality work.

Recognition for sustained superior performance has gone to Anita M. Benson, 1165 Kimball Avenue and Henry C. Edwards, 1208 Vallejo Street and for outstanding performance to Florence E. McEwen, 945 Hamilton Street; Clyde O. Andrews Sr., 1748 LaSalle Avenue; John G. Dorsey, 1880 Yosemite; Jack T. Dryden, 1438 Military Avenue and Robert A. Gumbs, 1225 San Pablo Avenue.

Penny A. Sprague, 11 Loch Place, Del Rey Oaks, has received a $75 A ward for suggesting a way to cut costs.

K of C Donate To Suicide Prevention

The Pacific Grove Knights of Columbus #5210 contributed to the Suicide Prevention Center of Monterey County when the center asked for financial assistance as a result of curtailment of funds.

Grand Knight Clarence J. Kilwein presented a sizeable donation to President William S. Griffith at a special meeting at the Center. Also present was Robert H. Huggill of the Sports Car Racing Association of the Monterey Peninsula.

The Knights put in hundreds of man-hours at the Laguna Seca Raceway on the three racing weekends as crowd controllers. SCRAMP presented a check to them last December in payment for their work. The Knights, in turn, are donating the money to the Suicide Prevention to fray expenses of their worthy service to the community.

The Center, which has a staff of over eighty volunteers from all over the Peninsula, was founded in February 1968.

Needs of everyone, young and old, who call for help are served by the Center. Over 1,500 calls were received last year.

A volunteer is at the telephone, 373-0713, every day a day, twenty-four hours a day.

Volunteers are given psychiatric screening and receive eighteen hours of instruction before going on duty as probationary volunteers for a minimum of four hours a week.

Speakers, representing the Center, are available to other organizations who are interested in their work. Arrangements may be made by calling 373-0713.

The Center's financial needs are modest, but its resources are inadequate to meet them. Donations are tax-deductible. Contributions earmarked for the Center may be sent to the County Association for Mental Health, P. O. Box 3241 Carmel, Calif. 93921.

Sex Education Is Topic

"Sex Education-When & Where?" is the topic to be discussed by Dr. Robert Black at a Monterey pediatrician, on Monday, March 8 at 8 p.m. at the Casa Estrada, the community room of the Monterey Savings and Loan.

The public is invited to this informative program which is sponsored by the Childbirth Education League.

The Childbirth Education League also sponsors prenatal classes stressing "prepared childbirth."

For addition information about the program or prenatal classes, call Mrs. Rose Morrisseau at 372-9302.

New Dates For Monterey Schools Week

The March 1-6 dates for Monterey Community Schools Week have been changed to March 22-27, and will feature open house events during school hours, to be announced.

The week will not begin a meeting of the Monterey Peninsula Unified School District Board of Education, scheduled March 1 and 15.

Reports to the board about Monterey schools tentatively are planned for May 3 when the board meets in the administration center. New Monterey schools were recognized January 18, with reports about some schools of the area.

Monterey Community Schools Week will be the fifth such observance during the school year. None is set for April because of Easter recess beginning Saturday, April 3 through Easter Sunday April 11 and because of California's 52nd Public Schools Week, April 26-30, 1971.

FUN TIME - This happy group of children were present at party held at POST office last week. Another party will be held this Saturday from 9:30 to 11:30 a.m. at office of POST, 510 Broadway, for children between 4 and 9 years old. Cookies and drinks have been donated by manager of Seaside Safeway Norris Gilmore and TV sets, on which kids view Seaside Street, are donated by TV Mart and Seaside TV. Bearded child in center is real estate broker Vern Beck, who brought his child and stayed for fun.

Bank Leader Urges New Guidelines

The so far "puny" national attack on America's quality of life problems stems from confusion and the prime cause of that confusion is a lack of even the crudest forms of measurement of quality, according to A.W. Clausen, president of Bank of America.

In making this assertion, Clausen urged government, education and the accounting profession to combine efforts to develop an "arithmetic of quality" to overcome the inadequate response to the quality of life issue.

Such a measuring stick, which could yield profoundly human benefits, is an essential first step toward solving contemporary social problems, according to Clausen. As an example of a flaw in current measuring tools, Clausen cited the aftermath of the recent Southern California earthquake.

Despite the great damage and obvious loss of assets caused by the earthquake, the Gross National Product will probably show an increase as repairs are made, with the repair and reconstruction industries in particular reflecting an upward trend.

Addressing the National Industrial Conference Board's Sixth Annual Financial Conference, the president of the world's largest bank declared: "Despite some of the heroic and bold efforts made by individual corporations here and there, we will not see any really substantial and intelligently directed commitment of private resources to public problems until we developed an analytical framework by which such a commitment can be justified and monitored."

While pointing to the necessity of developing an arithmetic of quality, Clausen emphasized he wasn't advocating a do-nothing, wait-and-see attitude.

"In the meantime, we must all move as best we can to develop programs designed to accommodate social and environmental as well as economic needs."

In disagreeing with people who wish to cast the discipline of mathematics from our lives, Clausen said, "We need to learn how to use this discipline correctly, to temper it with human judgment and see that it remains a tool rather than a tyrant."

"Quantitative techniques can yield profoundly human benefits and can even come into being to serve basically human needs. It is in this spirit that I propose an arithmetic of quality."

An offshoot of the arithmetic of quality would be a social report that "would identify, assess and measure those elements of our national life that are essential to our well-being --and which are not, and cannot be, measured by the present economic indices."

"We need a system," he added, "where net output is increased or decreased by the amount that total assets -- capital, knowledge, skills, physical environment, a set of accounts should register not only the usual increase in net output resulting from growth in the market sector, but also record any offset to the degree the physical environment assets depreciate, lessening the future flow of benefits."

Development of the arithmetic of quality will require the best efforts of many disciplines and institutions, according to Clausen.

"I do not pretend the arithmetic of quality will, in and of itself, move us to the perfectly ideal society," he concluded, "But it is an essential first step."

MPC Plans Daytime Film Series

In response to requests from the community for daytime film programs, Monterey Peninsula College has scheduled a ten-week series of short travel films in color for screening Wednesday noons in the MPC library lecture hall.

Opening under the title "Theater of the 70's," the series is offered admission-free. Community members planning to attend are advised that

New Group Joins Drive For Coupons

The Monterey Peninsula Jaycettes have joined with the Gonzales Young Homemakers in a drive to collect enough General Mills coupons to obtain a Hemo-Dialysis machine for Monterey County.

Monterey County is in dire need of a kidney machine. Approximately 15 residents are alive today only because of the availability of a hemo-dialysis unit.

This machine was invented for people who are suffering from kidney failure, making it impossible for the normal cleansing of the kidneys.

Recently it was learned that it is possible to purchase a machine through the redemption of 800,000 General Mills coupons. These coupons may be found on all General Mills products, such as cereals, flour, cake, frosting and pudding mixes and other related items.

As of May 31, 1971, General Mills feels they must give up this worth while project as they have been accused of "...cashing in on somebody's sickness."

However, the Jaycettes believe that with the cooperation of the many organizations in Monterey County it should be possible to obtain the necessary 800,000 coupons prior to May 31.

This would not involve donating money. Help is wanted in obtaining coupons and publicizing the need for them. The public is urged to send their coupons to the Jaycettes, P. O. Box 2274 in Monterey or take them to the central collection box at Monterey Savings and Loan on Alvarado or to the Seaside Chamber of Commerce.

For further information please contact Mrs. Fife at 624-6086 or Mrs. Cuva at 372-4662.

Seaside's Dial-a-Gripe

The Human Relations Commission of the City of Seaside will present a series of educational Community Forums.

Their purpose will be to establish a better understanding and support closer relationships between the members of the Seaside City Council, the City Staff and the residents of the city.

Members of the community are asked to submit questions about the functions and responsibilities of city government, and the views of Council members.

A Community Forum will give citizens an opportunity to speak first-hand with "The People in Charge," so they may air their gripes, offer their praises and gain an understanding and insight into the operations of the city, its problems, its responsibilities its goals.

The Seaside Community Forum is particularly not intended to be a Candidate's Night, but rather an educational Dialog, a free exchange of information. Questions are to be asked and answers given, in both directions. Different members of city government will be available to deal with topics with which they are particularly experienced.

General topics will be chosen for each Forum. Personal accusations and irrelevant matters will not be acceptable. Questions intended for particular members of the Council will be submitted to them in advance so they may prepare answers. Appropriate questions pertaining to the subject matter of the evening will be accepted.

All questions for the Community Forum should be submitted to the Seaside City Manager's Office, in writing, by telephone (372-4514, ext. 22), or in person.

parking is available in the campus lots near the highway or adjacent to the music hall on the west side of the campus.

The schedule includes: "Wings to Spain" and "Portugal," March 10; "Fiesta - Central American Holiday," "Wings to Venezuela," and "New Horizons: Uruguay," March 17; "Down Under" and

"Isles of Paradise," March 24; "Nauri: East Africa" and "Egypt," March 31;

"High in the Himalayas" and "India," April 7; "Wings to Scandinavia" and "U.S.S.R.," April 14; "Israel" and "Wings to Yugoslavia," April 21; "Switzerland" and "Ski the Moebius Flip," April 28 and "Wings to Great Britain" and "Ireland," May 5.

Publisher's Report Seaside Ripples

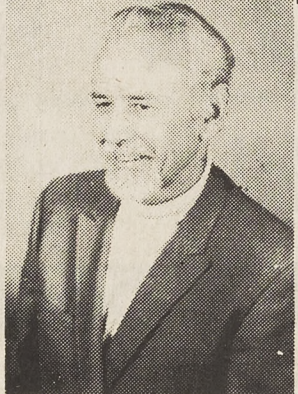

A. E. 'Andy' Barragan, Publisher

Ever since I wrote my last column on what a fine job the Chamber of Commerce and YAFA and the Community center are doing in trying to create jobs in the community I have found more and more evidence that finally, after years of disastrous unemployment in the country, that the administration is awakening to the fact that we need jobs. Maybe it is because of the fact that so many of the so-called middle class and educated segments of our society are now out of jobs because of the cutbacks in the aerospace industry.

The politicians know that these people have votes and that they will use them. Not only will they use their votes, but they will organize other vociferous groups to help them. I have to believe that this threat was a prime motivating factor in getting the administrations in Washington and Sacramento to move towards creating more jobs. As long as it was just a bunch of poor workers that were our of work, well, you know, "They don't really want to work anyway; they just want to draw their unemployment; they just like it on welfare" and on and on with the myths that we have created in our minds about the poor.

The administration is proposing "WPA" type jobs for these scientists and engineers whose talents are being wasted; there are proposals that they go into public service to help solve the bigger problems of unemployment, pollution, housing and others that have plagued our country for so many years. And why shouldn't NPS Merges Don't Pay Too Much Two Academic Departments.

The Naval Postgraduate School's Department of Operations Analysis has merged with the Department of Business Administration and Economics.

The two departments have shared fields of interest for a number of years, particularly in the area of management. In terms of student enrollment, the management and operations analysis curricula are the largest at the school, with over 460 officers in the program.

Dr. John W. Creighton, chairman of Business Administration and Economics since June 1967, will become a senior professor in the new department. Dr. Jack R. Borsting, chairman of the Operations Analysis Department, will retain the chairmanship and lead the combined faculty of 65.

In announcing the consolidation, Rear Admiral, Robert McNitt, superintendent of the school, said that no immediate changes will be made in any of the curricular programs formerly associated with the two departments. The new organization will eventually result in stronger management curricula which will better prepare officers for increasingly difficult jobs after they leave Monterey.

Tax Tables Cover Income To $10,000

Federal income tax tables now cover incomes up to $10,000 and include all entries for figuring the tax, R. F. Harless, District Director of Internal Revenue Service for Northern California, said recently.

In prior years the tables were limited to individuals with incomes under $5,000. Taxpayers whose income consists only of wages and not more than $100 in dividends and do not itemize deductions may use the tables.

The new tables reflect the increased exemption deduction of $625, an increase from the $600 for previous years.

The tables also reflect the low income allowance which is $1100 for 1970. The effect of the low income allowance and the $625 personal exemption on a single person with no dependents is to eliminate liability for tax until income reaches $1725, or $2350 for a single person 65 or over.

Harless said the tables reflect, for each income bracket, whether or not the use of the lower income allowance or the ten percent standard deduction will result in a lower tax.

Mr. Harless alerted taxpayers who are filing estimated tax declarations for 1971 to use the tax tables for that year since personal and dependency exemptions is $650 for 1971 and the low income allowance limited to $1050.

Taxpayers who itemize deductions or have income over $10,000 can compute their tax by using the tax rate schedule. However, they may have the Internal Revenue compute their tax if they have no more than $20,000 of income consisting only of wages, tips, dividends, interest, pensions and annuities and do not

Thousands of Californians are overpaying their State personal income tax by failing to claim personal and dependent exemption credits.

A review of early returns reveals that almost 10 percent of the taxpayers are not taking the exemption credits allowed to every taxpayer, Martin Huff, Executive Officer of the Franchise Tax Board, reported recently.

In the case of individual taxpayers, this represents a $25 reduction in tax. For married couples, the tax reduction would be $50 and $8 for each dependent.

Huff asked Californians to make certain that they complete Part V on page 2 of the Form 540 and to bring the exemption credit forward to Line 13 of Page 1.

Huff urged all taxpayers to read the instructions carefully, to claim their exemption credits and to file and pay the tax by the April 15 deadline.

Seaside Tops List Of Volunteers

Seaside led the way in Army volunteers for the month of January, according to Sergeant Jose Garcia, United States Army recruiter for the Monterey Peninsula.

Among ten enlistees from the Seaside area the following were from Seaside: Joseph C. Wustig, 1360 Broadway Avenue; Henry E. Mamon, 1652 Kenneth Street; James T. Sikorowicz, 1255 San Lucas Street; Hally E. Morris, 1841 Luzern Street and Odis R. O'Neal, 1614 Highland Street. Fort Ord enlistees were John Holden Jr., 400 4th Avenue; Jerome D. Eliason, 324 Napier Street and Stanley R. Lewandowski, of 179 Corregidor Road.

From Marina, the volunteers are Douglas E. Woodring, 3335 Livery Way and Birt A. Johnson Jr. of 3054 Eddy Circle.

All the volunteers were guaranteed training in a specific field or job of their choice and this guarantee was made to them in writing before enlisting.

For information on the U. S. Army's guaranteed training program, persons are urged to call Sergeant Garcia at 372-4742 or stop by the recruiting office at 431 Webster Street in Monterey.

Specific instructions and a sample filled-in return to help taxpayers who would like the Internal Revenue Service to figure their taxes are provided in the instruction booklet that comes with the tax forms.

Taxpayers who qualify and wish to have the Internal Revenue compute the tax on their Form 1040, should: (1) fill in the vital information about themselves (2) list their income, (3) attach Schedule R, Retirement Income Credit Computation, if applicable, (4) Sign the return and (5) attach Copy B of the W-2 For "Wage and Tax Statement".

The return should be sent to the Internal Revenue Western Service Center in Ogden Utah. The government will do the rest.

After the Internal Service figures the tax on a return, it will refund or bill for the tax due and send to the taxpayer. Bills for tax due should be paid within 10 days to avoid interest or penalty charges.

Senator Alan Cranston has asked the Army to review its policy of requiring that inductees get a member of Congress to intervene if they want to appeal their pre-induction medical examinations. He also urged that physicals be "more thorough", pointing out that he has received "a number of disturbing reports of allegations of rushed examination and inadequate consideration of medical evidence" submitted by the draftees private doctors.

In a letter to Maj. Gen. Donald H. McGovern, commanding general of the Army Recruiting Command, Cranston disclosed that he has been "inundated with appeals from constituents" since the order requiring Congressional intervention went into effect last October 1.

"At present, I am handling 100-150 appeal cases a week," Cranston noted, "While I am pleased to help, the volume is becoming a major problem for my office."

"In view of the obvious need to improve the present method of evaluating medical evidence -- which unduly penalizes men who cannot obtain Congressional intervention," Cranston said, "I would suggest that a change in policy is in order."

Cranston said the Army's new policy apparently came in response to a ruling last September by Director Curtis Tarr that Selective Service would no longer provide free transportation for men who had passed their pre-induction physicals and want to be re-examined on the basis of medical evidence supplied by their doctors.

Such re-examinations are conducted in centrally located Armed Forces Examination and Entrance Station in each state. In California they are in Oakland, Fresno and Los Angeles.

In an apparent effort to hold down the number of appeals and reduce the cost to the Army, which has picked up the tab for transporting appeal cases, Army Recruiting Command now insists that a request for re-examination must come through a Congressman or Senator.

"It would seem to me that a simpler solution would be to require that persons requesting re-examination pay for the transportation themselves," Cranston told General McGovern. He said that the requirement that review be granted only those who obtain Congressional intervention "certainly should be recinded".

Cranston also called for "more thorough" pre-induction physicals for all Selective Service registrants "to determine if any medical problem exists, to review appropriate medical evidence -- including lab reports and x-rays -- and to assure that an unbiased medical evaluation is being made".

He reported that since October 10, he has recommended 188 California cases for review, all of whom had passed their pre-induction physicals. Of these, 118 were subsequently found to be medically unfit for military service when they were re-examined.

In seven other cases, where the men had passed both pre-induction and induction physicals and had actually been sworn into the armed forces, six were discovered to be medically unfit and were discharged after they were re-examined at Cranston's request.

Cities and Counties Fix More Roads

California's cities and counties during 1969-70 spent a record $865,873,568 on streets and roads, an 11 percent increase of $86,313,816 over the prior year, State Controller Houston I. Flournoy reported recently.

Summarizing his Annual Report of Financial Transactions Concerning Street and Roads of Cities and Counties, Flournoy said the 404 cities accounted for $421,002,379 or 63 percent of the total, while the 68 counties spent $244,871,189.

This was an increase of 13.5 percent over the prior year for the cities and 7.2 percent for the counties, principally attributable to construction and maintenance of the growing street and road mileage, the Controller reported.

Waterford, Stanislaus County and Simi Valley, Ventura County, were the only incorporated cities added to the accounting during the fiscal year.

The cities used 84.3 percent of their expenditures for maintenance and construction work with the balance going into engineering, administration and acquisition of rights of way and equipment.

The counties used 81.5 percent for construction and maintenance.

The report, compiled by the Controller from data submitted by the various local government agencies, indicates that 50.6 percent of the total monies made available for street and road use by the cities and counties were derived from State sources, 43.3 percent from local sources and the balance principally from federal sources and flood control districts.

Flournoy said that in addition to the direct expenditures by the cities and counties, there was an estimated $156,820,487 spent locally on streets and roads under the Improvement Act of 1911 and similar acts and by private investment. This was $31,490,356 higher than estimates for the preceding year. These estimates, supplied by the reporting cities and counties but not accountable by them, indicated $93,378,785 of such expenditures in the cities, and $63,441,702 in the counties.

Army Needs Seamen

The United States Army has a need for seamen, marine engineers, labor craft operators and repairmen, according to Sergeant Jose Garcia, Local Army recruiter.

Young men who have had training in carpentry, metal or woodwork, who are mechanically inclined, like to work with motors or who enjoy motor boating, will find this type of background especially helpful in Marine Operations training.

Sgt. Garcia is presently accepting applications from young men for entry into Army schools to learn hull repair, seamanship, amphibious operations and engineering.

After serving their active military service commitment, many veterans have found that the training and experience received while in the Army are valuable to them in civilian occupations such as marine gas engine machinist, engine maintenance specialist, ship's carpenter and shipfitter.

Interested persons are urged to contact Sergeant Garcia at 431 Webster Street in Monterey or call him at 372-4742.

Grooving Around the Peninsula with Betty Mann

Hi There, Fellow Peninsulans:

(Editor's Note: Due to a last minute rush, some spelling and editing mistakes were made in Betty Mann's column last week. We apologize for any embarrassment caused. Also, the names of two of the 1970 Debutantes were omitted: Celestine Harris and Judy Burden; the names of three members of the league were also omitted: Mrs. Purr Harris, Mrs. William Hampton and Mrs. Talton Valrey.)

News of Interest Around Town:

Mrs. Bertha Milligan of Seaside became the bride of M/Sgt. Laverne Woods at a ceremony held at the home of the officiating minister, Rev. Magee, pastor of Emanuel Church of God in Christ, Seaside. Mr. and Mrs. John Cooper were the attendants at the ceremony. A reception was held in honor of the bride and groom at the home of one of the bride's relatives. The bridegroom has been assigned as an advisor to the National Guard in San Antonio, Texas. The bride will join him at his new assignment in August.

Mrs. Fredrika Evans of Seaside recently announced the birth of a new grandson—Garfield Henry Shelton, III. Parents of the new baby are: Mr. and Mrs. Garfield Henry Shelton, II of Tacoma, Washington. The mother is the former Cheryl Parker of Seaside.

All of you parents who have children 4 to 9 years of age are urged to bring your children to the "Pound and Paste" cultural activities that are being offered by the Seaside POST News-Sentinel. The sessions are each Saturday morning from 9:30 a.m. to 11:30 a.m. The television show, Sesame Street, story telling, drawing and art work are enjoyed by the youngsters. Refreshments are also being served to the kids.

I would like to share this "hilarious" joke with my readers. It was published recently in the San Francisco Chronicle in Herb Caen's column. He called it the "The Howling Lady": This very pregnant woman was standing alongside her car absolutely doubled up, and the police officer rushed over to ask anxiously, "Are you in labor lady?" "No," she replies, gasping for breath, "I am laughing," and what is so damn funny? "Well, the doctor wanted a sample of my urine so I put it in an Old Grandad Bottle and while I was inside the store, doing a little shopping, somebody stole it." I wish I could have seen the expression of the greedy person who decided to indulge in the spirits." (SMILE)

The People's Schools

By Bryce W. Anderson

Reports of government-appointed commissions generally are long on "padding" and short on content; but such is not the case with the 57-page report of the Governor's Commission on Educational Reform.

On the report's release, principal attention was given its proposals to abolish teacher tenure, and to replace county schools offices with a system of regional offices of the California Department of Education. But others of its recommendations are equally revolutionary.

One calls for complete re-writing of the California Education Code, which contains some 32,000 sections of which many contradict each other. It advocates legislation setting up a commission to draft a whole new code "which would prescribe only minimum limitations," freeing local school districts from the stultifying and often incomprehensible restrictions of the multiplicity of state laws.

The commission, headed by Robert E. Hanson, advocates considerable increase in responsibilities of the state Board of Education and a corresponding decrease in policy responsibilities of the state Department of Education.

This move toward putting educational policy in the hands of those representing the public rather than the educational profession would be augmented by making the state superintendent appointive, which the governor's commission—like many before it—advocates.

The state board, says the report, should be given responsibility for assessing the financial needs of the public schools and presenting them in an annual budget to the governor and legislature; for defining the priority of state goals in education, and for prescribing minimum standards of accomplishment.

Tying this to the concept of accountability, the commission calls for annual assessment of student achievement as each grade level, and for student performance objectives on which this would be based.

It strikes at the legislature's habit of mandating new programs, then leaving it up to the local districts to find money for them. "All mandated educational programs (should) be funded by the state," it declares.

Besides advocating repeal of tenure laws, the commission criticizes the lockstep salary schedule by which teachers advance in pay solely on the basis of graduate credits and years of service. Like Governor Ronald Reagan, it calls for consideration of "merit pay. But it goes farther.

"Career ladders should be provided," says the report, "to permit outstanding teachers to earn as much as, or more than, administrators." To do this, it advocates multiple salary schedules "provided on a competitive basis" and defined in part in terms of responsibilities.

Taking a critical look at where the money goes, the commission notes: "Research studies show that on the average at least one-third of a classroom teacher's time is spent in activities which are non-professional in nature." With California teacher salaries aggregating $1,837 billion last year, this means more than $600 million in non-professional salaries was paid for nonprofessional work, it observes.

Hiring instructional aides has done little to reduce this, the report says. It advocates instead using students in teaching training programs. It proposes that a major portion of the state scholarship fund be used for working grants to such students.

PG&E Area Head Named

Frank M. Scott has been appointed general services manager in Pacific Gas and Electric Company's Coast Valleys Division succeeding E. M. (Ed) Kelly, Division Manager W. L. (Bill) Murray announced recently. Kelly recently was promoted to San Jose.

Scott's responsibilities include the buildings, automotive equipment, land management and materials and supplies in the division, which extends from Monterey and San Benito counties to northern Santa Barbara County.

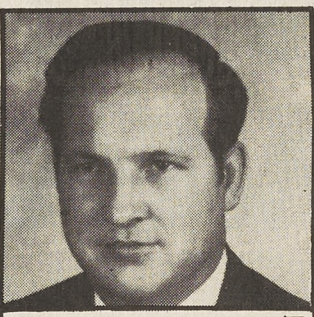

Scott served as a technical estimator at division headquarters in Salinas from 1950 to 1953. Until his appointment he was an administrative assistant to the vice president for personnel and general services in San Francisco.

A 36-year employee of PG&E, Scott started with the company in 1935 as a night telephone operator in Fresno, where he was born and reared.

He was drafted into the army in 1941 and when World War II ended in 1945 he had progressed to the rank of captain.

Returning to PG&E in San Luis Obispo, he earned a series of promotions, serving in San Luis Obispo, Salinas, Santa Rosa, Vallejo and San Rafael. In 1959 he was named manager of general services in PG&E's North Bay Division in San Rafael.

The Scotts have two daughters, Margaret, a teacher at Livermore High School and Kathryn, a women's physical education instructor at the University of California, Berkeley.

MCEI Forms New Noise Study Group

The Monterey Committee for Environmental Information has announced the formation of a Noise Pollution Study Group as part of its public information service. Dr. Peter Besag, Chairman of the MCEI announced recently.

Interested persons with

Church Services

Man's true nature will be explored at Christian Science services Sunday, which begin at 10:30 A.M. on Monterey Peninsula.

Scriptural selections in the Lesson-Sermon on "Man" include this verse from the first chapter of Genesis: "God created man in his own image, in the image of God created he him; male and female created he them."

A citation to be read from "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy states: "Jesus taught but one God, one Spirit."

professional or scientific training or experience in the area of noise physics or related fields are invited to become a part of this new volunteer group.

In particular, experts in the biological, architectural and engineering aspects are urged to make their talents available.

The purpose of the new group will be similar to that of the Water Pollution, Air Pollution, Urban Planning, Population and Consumer Education study groups of the MCEI, namely, to provide the public with unbiased scientific and technical information.

"The Scientist Informs, the Citizen Decides" is the motto of the Scientists Institute for Public Information, of which the Monterey Committee for Environmental Information is an affiliate.

The Committee also urges citizens with information regarding proposed actions of public bodies regarding noise pollution standards, etc., to present these to the Noise Pollution Study Group for technical evaluation.

The office of MCEI is on the Monterey Peninsula College campus and is open Monday through Friday from 1 to 5 the telephone number is 372-7798.

we use all of those brains for the public good, instead of wasting them in war-oriented industries.

I would like to believe also that the powers-that-be awoke to the plight of our unemployed through their intelligent concern for the welfare of all of the people and for our economy, but my innate suspicion of politicians makes me think that they are worried about the election year just around the corner in 1972. Not only is the administration doing an about face on their previous abhorrence of "WPA" type jobs to solve the unemployment problem, but they have even started to look at wage and price controls, about ten years too late. And then they are going about it all wrong, they are trying to control just the construction industry and letting the rest of the high-profit corporations go. True the wages of the construction workers have gone way out of line but so have the prices that these people have to pay for their living, also, gone way out of line. What we really need is a genuine roll-back of prices and a freeze of wages and prices at that point.

I have not understood the reluctance of the administrations in Washington, both Republican and Democratic, to the establishment of honest wage and price controls, but maybe I just don't know about those things. What I do know is that big outfits like the Pennsylvania Railroad and Lockheed Aircraft had to go into bankruptcy procedures and that the largest airlines are losing money hand over fist and all this goes with the highest unemployment figure since the '30s. I know that there is something wrong with the economy and the way that it is being run when such horrible conditions are allowed to continue. And yet there is something wrong with wage and price controls we are told. No, there's nothing wrong. It's just that someone is afraid of losing some profits somewhere.

But, let's get back to the brighter side we started in the beginning of this column. Besides the awakening to the unemployment and some money being loosened up from Washington to provide more jobs we now find that the banks and Federal Reserve Board have been dropping the interests rates so fast that the local bankers can't keep up with the drops. They are afraid to make a loan this morning because by afternoon their competition (what competition?) might drop the interest rate and have a better deal. Seriously, though, the banks were caught with too much money to loan and just like any other merchant they had to drop their prices so that somebody would buy.

All of these signs are good. It shows that in spite of the stubbornness of politicians (don't we know that in Seaside) somehow the solutions begin to present themselves, if we only don't lose hope. If only we could keep up our faith that there will really be a solution to the Vietnam War. The actions of our last two presidents in bringing about a halt to that senseless killing hasn't done anything to bolster our faith. But just as the pressure finally forced them to move on the economy, they will be forced to make peace in Vietnam.

Your Social Security

By: Raymond MacDonald

Q. My 30 year-old daughter has been paralyzed from the waist down since she was injured in an auto accident at age 7. She has never been able to work and I have taken care of her all these years. I will be applying for my Social Security this year when I am 62. Will my daughter be entitled to any benefits when I retire?

A. Yes. When you sign up for your Social Security benefits you should tell the people at the Social Security office that you have a daughter who has been disabled since childhood and the necessary application for benefits for her will be taken. You will need her birth certificate, and the names and addresses of doctors who have treated her, also, the names of any hospitals she may have been in prior to her 18th birthday.

Q. I have heard the term "disabled adult child" and have often wondered just what it means. Could you explain the term to me?

A. A "disabled adult child" is a person 18 years old or older who has a severe disability which began in childhood and keeps him handicapped as an adult. In order to receive Social Security benefits as a person disabled since childhood, the person's father or mother must either be receiving Social Security benefits due to retirement or disability or have died. (Mail your questions to Social Security, c/o Post News-Sentinel, Seaside or phone Social Security office 373-3351.

Questions are Answered

Q. I am a 19-year-old college student who draws a death pension from the VA. When I marry will my pension be discontinued?

A. Yes. Pension is not paid to a child after marriage.

Q. A service-connected injury left me permanently and totally disabled. Will my children receive VA educational assistance while in high school?

A. No. Under this program the law prohibits payment for a regular high school education, unless the child has a mental or physical disability.

Q. A reservist served six months on active duty for training during a wartime period. Several months after completion of this training he was killed in an automobile accident. Is he entitled to a U.S. burial flag?

A. No. Reservists are not eligible for a flag unless they incur service-connected disabilities.

Letter to the Editor

Congratulations upon the inauguration of your series of programs of creative-cultural activities for children of the community of Seaside. We wish you much success in this undertaking and hope that it is just the beginning of a varied and far-reaching program. WHAT IS YOUNG ADULTS FOR ACTION? This is a question that is being asked more and more frequently as each day go by.

This is the first of a series of articles that will try to answer this question. We will attempt to touch all bases in our articles to awaken the community from the inception and founding right up to date, which will also include our future plans, goals and objectives.

These articles will not necessarily be in any chronological sequence, but we feel it is proper to begin at the beginning.

YOUNG ADULTS FOR ACTION was founded by Lee Toler, who is the Director.

Having been born in the ghetto of East St. Louis, Illinois, no one had to teach him what it was like to be in the category of underprivileged. Before the government found labels for poor people, Lee was already fully aware of what it was to be unemployed and to live in sub-standard housing. Lee knew what it was to be hungry and cold with no money to buy food or coal. Lee knew what it was to be denied the three main necessities of life, food, shelter and clothing.

Not Lee was not in a unique situation because there were millions of people in his same predicament.

For him to survive this level of existence was nothing spectacular because again, millions of people survived. Many of them have gone on to bigger and better things; many have scaled the ladder of success in many fields.

But we're talking here about Lee Toler, a man who found his escape from that ghetto by joining the United States Army. After several years in the service and attaining the rank of Sergeant and seeing combat duty in the P.T.O. and Korea, he was honorably discharged.

Prior to his being discharged he was stationed at nearby Fort Ord and had become adjusted to the California climate and decided to make Seaside his home. During this time he had married (Velma) and had a lovely family of two daughters and one son (Michon, Von-trese an Reginald).

Following his discharge he was employed by the Monterey Peninsula Unified School District as a custodian. It was here the need for an action program for the youth came into focus.

While an employee of the School District, Lee recognized the lack of communication between the students and teachers. He began conducting informal rap sessions with the students and as the frequency of the sessions increased, so did the number of participants.

On many occasions the students preferred "rapping" with Lee "head-up" rather than in the group and this eventually led to his visiting with the parents.

By this time Lee was in a liaison position bridging the gaps between the triangle of student, teacher and parent.

Soon, the group reached a size where adequate space was needed in which to meet. The librarian, who was aware of Lee's activities, not only provided the space in the school library for Lee to conduct these sessions, but also provided him with an abundance of encouragement to continue in this endeavor.

As these sessions became more and more a part of the school day for students, the idea came up that his group should have a name. After accepting and rejecting several suggestions, the group finally agreed and settled with the name YOUNG ADULTS FOR ACTION. This all began in 1965 at Martin Luther King High School in Seaside.

The sessions began carrying over from the school into evening sessions at Lee's home where his wife would prepare little snacks and kool-aid. If nothing else, this alone was keeping the students off the streets at night and provided them with a forum for discussing constructive matters that was of interest to them.

This culminated in the discovery that one of the major problems affecting these students was economics. Armed with this ammunition Lee knew he was going to have to do something to solve this problem.

CONTINUED NEXT WEEK.

Who Cares

By Mel Vercos

Father Charlie Moore didn't look like a traditional type priest, but then I guess he isn't a traditional type of priest, anyway. He appeared with three other panelists and a moderator discussing the changing role of the church.

About 80 brave souls showed up at the lecture hall last Friday evening to hear what these panelists would have to say in spite of a very cold wind and the great danger that one might hear something unpleasant or upsetting about such an untouchable matter as religious belief.

Two nice looking lady panelists didn't contribute much, which was sad, in a way, because all the way down through history it has been the females of the species who have borne the children, and today, in our rapidly changing world it would appear to this writer that women are missing the boat when they think their responsibilities are largely ended as soon as Junior gets into the first grade and learns how to kill with toy guns.

So the discussion was mainly between Father Charlie and a philosophy professor (I didn't hear his name clearly). The professor's views were diametrically opposed to those of Father Charlie. Father Charlie seemed to think that a church should be concerned with such down to earth items as ecology, war and peace, poor people and generally realistic approaches to real problems. The professor of philosophy, to my complete amazement, was of the opinion that we had no problems, really, that there was no threat to our ecology, for example, and that we should not concern ourselves with these things because God would take care of everything for us.

It frightens me to think that I might have majored in philosophy and might have been on that panel telling the audience that all was well in the world because, after all, I was neither hungry nor cold, nor was I over in Asia dying of napalm burns or falling to my with a helicopter with its blades shot off.

As for the changing role of the church, as a layman I am of the firm opinion that churches as organizations are on the way out. They have too much competition and opposition to survive-competition from such mind-destroying vehicles as continuous television starting at age one, and opposition because it is uncomfortable to have to make a pretense to espousing the Golden Rule and the Ten Commandments while trying to keep up with the Jones's.

If major churches could see far enough ahead to read the handwriting on the wall-that refusal to adapt to changing values will mean the end, not only of the churches but of any help they might have been able to contribute to human needs-they might survive a little longer by doing as Father Charlie suggested, looking down toward earth and at human needs for ways to help God, instead of looking in vain for him somewhere in the sky while praying for personal salvation.

ANTI-POLLUTION PROGRAMS
TAKING EFFECT

By Janet Browning

Pollution, man's number one enemy is finally being combatted.

Pollution began as did man. When Adam's wife, Eve, disposed of her apple core, she brought forth the birth of pollution. Unfortunately it was overlooked; there was no worry - the Earth was young and unpopulated.

Since then, man has somehow been able to make pollution one of his major problems. He has managed to have more garbage than ever before! Why does he threaten his environment his society, even himself? No one can really answer that question. This problem has been with us for decades on end. However, it's just become critical in the past few years. At last, man has started to fight back. How? By campaigns, advertisements, even songs which have been written about pollution.

People, who were concerned, have contributed much of their time and money. But their's is not enough. Pollution is a serious problem and if more of us concerned got together, we could try to help save the world from the deadly pollution which started out as a mere apple core.

TUTORIAL AID PROGRAM BACK

By Karin E. Alston

Well, it's here again. The tutorial program is once again in business, thanks to Mr. Ron Bettencourt.

Mr. Bettencourt analyzed students to find qualified tutors. In order to become a tutor, a student must be recommended by the teachers.

This program is constructed around the honor system. The tutors are paid $1.65 per hour and are not permitted to work more than fifteen hours per week. The place of tutoring is not specified. The students may work wherever it is convenient for them.

Last year the program did not survive because students suddenly stopped being tutored. This program is to help students improve in any course they have trouble in, and is funded by the district.

VIOLENCE ON T.V.

By Mary Untalan

Since the beginning of man, violence has played a part in the human cycle. Today, surrounding you and me, we can see examples of this human characteristic. Television which is viewed by a majority of young people is an example of this. Many of the so-called "kiddy shows" are influenced with violence. Examples of this are shows such as Popeye, Road Runner, Pink Panther, Tom & Jerry and Mighty Mouse.

While many parents are stopping their young children from viewing shows about wars and guns, they fail to recognize the violence of the children cartoons on Saturday mornings.

AGENTS ON CAMPUS?

By Beryl Domingo

Upon viewing a new film on FBI agents, with Jack Webb as distinctive narrator, the point of lack of interest was clearly put through.

Many people today do not realize how underground works have been operating. Even before the days of Pretty Boy Floyd and John Dillinger, espionage and conspiracy agents were working desperately with laboratory experiments and all sorts of chemical equipment to help man live within a better society.

Wouldn't it be something if such agents were inserted into some of the cliques here on campus? Don't you, as concerned students, think it would be a help to cut down on the distributing of hard drugs?

THINK ABOUT IT!!!!

OVER CROWDED BUSES

By Toni Pierce

In my opinion, the Seaside High school buses, which are supposed to transport, not herd, the students from home to school and back again, are disgusting. They are cramped and uncomfortable. Besides being a discomfort to ride in, I think they are also a safety hazard. We are sitting three people in most seats when only two are supposed to. If there was ever a fire I don't think everyone could get out.

I think there could be a way to solve this problem if the people in charge would notice this situation.

Partners Take Trip To Rome

Eugene J. Madison and Thomas R. Doyle, partners of TV MART in Seaside, just returned from a "Rendezvous in Rome" on TWA deluxe jet charter flight from Ciampino Airport. They were accompanied by their wives.

As guests of Admiral Corporation, the Madisons and Doyles stayed at the elegant 400-room Cavalieri Hilton atop Monte Mario on fifteen acres of beautifully landscaped park overlooking downtown Rome.

On arrival night, they and their traveling companions were entertained with a dinner party reception, dancing, cocktails and a special show.

While in Rome, they also took sightseeing tours along the Via Veneto, to Tivoli and Old Rome, shopping tours and had luncheons and dinners in some of Rome's finest, most famous restaurants, such as Alfredo's.

The tour was ended with a farewell cocktail reception in the hotel, followed by a gala "Toga" party with dinner, music and dancing, complete with slaves, legionnaires, gladiators and chariots.

Increased Payments In Benefits

Increased payments averaging between 9 and 10 percent for approximately 63,000 veterans and survivors in Northern California on the Veterans Administration pension rolls are provided in a bill signed into law recently by the President, according to Joseph E. Mullen, Acting Director of VA's Northern California Regional Office.

VA pension is paid for disabilities and deaths not due to military service. An increase in benefits was also given to parents receiving dependency and indemnity compensation (DIC). The bill, Mullen stated, also raised income limitations that determine if, and how much, VA pension can be awarded to disabled veterans and widows and children of deceased veterans.

BFG Will Use New 'Street Tires' At Daytona

B. F. Goodrich Company recently introduced a unique radial passenger car tire that it will use on a high-performance car this year as the only domestically made "street" tire in major track competition.

Patrick C. Ross, executive vice president-marketing of the company's tire division said here that the company will match the new 60-series radial tire against single-purpose, pure racing tires during 1971 in the 24-hour Daytona and 12-hour Sebring international road races in Florida and in 12 selected Sports Car Club of America (SCCA) national races.

He said the new tire will be campaigned in the grueling events on a 425-horsepower Firebird, specially prepared for BFG, to provide valuable performance data that can be used directly to improve the company's radial and other passenger tires.

Ross told a recent press gathering at Ontario Motor Speedway that the tire, called "Radial T/A," is the first 60-series, ultra-wide radial passenger tire ever offered in the replacement market.

Ross said the new tire is the only domestically made passenger tire to both satisfy Department of Transportation safety requirements for highway use and be approved by the SCCA for track competition.

"Unlike pure racing tires which are constructed differently from passenger car tires, our Radial T/A has the same construction and advantages as our other radial passenger tires," he explained.

"Therefore, by subjecting the new tire to the rigors of racing, we will obtain information that has a direct connection with other test results we have gathered on tires under severe conditions. This should help us develop better performing, safer tires more quickly for the American motorist."

He emphasized that the company has no plans to use the 1971 track competition results to develop racing tires.

"We will continue to devote our time and efforts to producing tires that satisfy Department of Transportation (DOT) requirements and are considered legal, and safe, by DOT for highway use. Our new radial tire easily meets these criteria. Domestic racing tires, of course, are identified on the sidewall as being unsuitable for highway use," said Ross.

He disclosed that the new tire was tested against racing tires on an unmade, high-performance car that finished third on Oct. 11, 1970, in the two-hour Canadian Sedan Championship at Mosport, Ontario.

One week later, the Radial T/A tire became the first domestically made passenger tire to successfully challenge racing tires when the car won two SCCA sedan races at Watkins Glen.

The driver of the car in these three 1970 races was Canada's John Cordts, an internationally ranked professional driver who will drive the BFG high-performance car on Radial T/A tires at Sebring, March 20. His co-driver will be selected later.

Ross said that two improvements in the new tire already have resulted from its use in the 1970 track competition. The tread compound was improved to provide better all-weather traction and the beads were strengthened to eliminate all slippage of the tire on the wheel and keep it in balance longer at freeway speeds, he explained.

Independent tests have shown that the new radial tire will provide up to 50 per cent more tread mileage than 60-series bias-belted tires under normal freeway driving conditions, according to Ross. The tire also is 25 per cent more bruise resistant, he said, and is superior in all-weather handling characteristics, cool running, high-speed performance and load-carrying capacity.

According to Ross the tire, which has a two-ply rayon carcass and four-ply rayon belt, places more tread on the road than any other passenger tire for more effective traction, skid resistance and braking force.

"This large footprint results from the tire's extra-wide tread and the fact that the tread is stabilized by the inextensible four-ply belt running circumferentially around the tire underneath the tread," the BFG executive said.

Help Clear The Air

Frank H. Staub marketing vice president of Shell Oil Company said recently that at the present state of the national effort to clean up the atmosphere, it is the individual driver who can probably do most to cut automotive emissions.

He made the statement in connection with the start of an educational campaign to inform automobile drivers how they can make important contributions to lower exhaust emissions and use less gasoline at the same time.

The opening phase of the campaign is a series of television and magazine advertisements that stress the importance of a proper tune-up to make an engine burn gasoline more completely.

The ads say that more than half of all cars on the road need a tune-up and that if they all got one, total exhaust emissions in the U. S. could be reduced significantly.

J. C. Ellis, Shell's manager of vehicle emissions control, said that research by Shell and others shows that a spark plug misfire might double hydrocarbon emissions and a carburetor giving an over-rich fuel-air mixture could increase carbon monoxide emissions by 50 percent or more.

Ellis noted that a University of Michigan automotive tune-up clinic found that hydrocarbon emissions were cut by 55 percent with a tune-up. He quoted students who conducted the clinic as saying that "the individual motorist must begin to develop an attitude of responsibility toward the maintenance of his automobile to ensure low emissions."

In addition, Ellis said, the average driver can help cut emissions by driving conservatively, using a non-leaded gasoline if his car can run on it and by ensuring his battery is operating well to help his car start quickly.

He said a good tune-up for emission reduction should include checking the following items: plugs, plug wires, points, condenser, rotor, and cap, basic timing and spark advance, carburetor idle mixture, idle speed, cleanliness, and automatic choke operation, fuel and air filters, PCV valve

Datsun Sales Reach All Time High

"Our dealers are stronger and more confident now than at any time in our history," commented Robert O. Link, National Sales Manager for the Nissan Motor Corporation in U.S.A., the distributor for the Datsun line of cars and trucks.

"In the last few months they have tested the threatened impact of the domestic small cars and have searched for reaction to the purported downturn in the economy," Link continued, "and nothing has been able to make a dent in our ever increasing sales."

Link went on to describe how this well-founded enthusiasm within the dealer organization is not only the product of their spiraling sales but also the backup support being provided by Datsun. "We've worked hard to lay the ground work for this day and now our dealers, as well as Nissan, are enjoying the rewards."

The latest cause for enthusiasm are the January retail sales figures that show 18,872 cars and pickup trucks registered.

Up 132 percent over the same month a year ago, which recorded 8,062, this was also an all-time high monthly sales figure -- particularly impressive considering that January is not traditionally one of the better months for retail automobile sales.

Spearheading the increase were sales of the Datsun line of passenger cars which tallied a figure of 13,610 up 177 percent over the previous January's total of 4,917 again an all-time, any month high for the company.

Holding their own, but overshadowed by spectacular sales of passenger cars, was the January retail sales of Datsun's Little Hustler Pickup.

January reports show that pickup truck sales totaled 5,062 units, up 61 percent over the previous January when 3,145 units were sold.

"It's hard to imagine snowballs -- sitting here in my office in Gardena," Link concluded, "but it sure looks like we've got a nowball that is rapidly gaining momentum judging from these sales figures."

This two-man team is presenting Previews at schools around nation. Laser is one of nine demonstrations in 40-minute presentation which highlights many career opportunities in science and engineering. More than 1.5 million students and adults will see Previews this year.

Lunch For Every Needy Child Is Goal Of Riles

State Superintendent Wilson Riles, stressing the tie between nutrition and learning, recently took steps to bring up to an additional 350 thousand needy children under a federal school lunch program.

Most of the children attend one of the 26 percent of California public schools that do not participate in the National School Lunch Program.

Participation for the free or reduced cost lunches has been by option of the local school district, with federal funds paying most of the cost.

Riles released a statement saying he hopes to provide food in every school with needy children by September.

Administrative procedures will be changed to encourage schools to participate or to establish other means of bringing the food to the children.

"For simple humanitarian reasons, no child should sit in class hungry," Riles said. "And in the learning process, adequate nutrition is essential. Dropout rates, discipline problems and low performance can be traced directly to malnutrition."

"An empty stomach makes a sham of educational opportunity. What good is a textbook and a teacher if the child doesn't have the energy to learn? The term 'food for thought' is more literal than we think."

Riles said his real success depends on whether he can acquire additional funds from billion. Ward's recorded an increase of 2 percent for a total exceeding $2 billion.

Danger Of Vouchers

Governor Ronald Reagan's suggestion to give pupils a voucher to pay for education at a private, parochial or public school of their choice should not be "bought" by the public because it is a "simplistic cure-all" that could destroy the public schools, Mrs. Margaret L. Lemmer, president of the 173,000 member California Teachers Association (CTA) warns.

She says the governor's educational voucher proposal also raises many other crucial questions.

"Would it endanger our constitutional guarantee of separation of Church and State?" "Would it put private and parochial schools under the thumb of state regulation?" "Without state regulation, would it proliferate profit-making diploma mills and special-interest private schools designed to teach bigotry or revolution?" "Would it establish another level of bureaucracy to ensure that local taxpayers have some control over their school dollar?" asks Mrs. Lemmer.

"If an educator were to make such a proposal without being able to point to successful research and trial to answer these crucial questions, he would be condemned as irresponsible," she adds. "Unfortunately, politicians apparently have no such constraints in the heat of campaigning. Such statements create headlines for the politician, but nothing but confusion for the public."

Mrs. Lemmer points out that the Office of Economic Opportunity (OEO) and others looking at the voucher idea, propose in-depth studies and several long-range pilot projects to determine its feasibility.

STRANGE EATING HABITS

People in some societies would rather starve than eat unfamiliar foods, says food scientist C.O. Chichester of the University of Rhode Island. He pointed out that attempts to introduce nutritionally rich foods in India, Peru, Venezuela and Thailand have been rejected by those societies.

Prison Reform Is Goal

The commission for Racial Justice of the United Church of Christ called upon the two million members of the denomination to bring pressure on the government for prison reform.

It called especially for action against the no-knock, quick-entry and preventive detention law-making which pervades current administration thinking. It stated racism especially as is expressed in forms of institutional structures is the greatest crisis of society and of the whole church.

The action was reported by the Reverend Charles Cobb, executive director of the commission for Racial Justice. He added that policies of the Flip Wilson, who skyrocketed to success as the star of his weekly variety show, has been named "1970 Man of the Year" in Hollywood.

Wilson Is Man Of Year

Wilson will be honored at the 11th annual International Awards Presentation Dinner on March 23 at the Century Plaza Hotel.

The comedian is to be honored by the Society for his achievement in launching a new show that has been consistently in the top 10 throughout the season and for his remarkable ability to communicate with the nationwide audience.

"establishment" of which the church is part are designed for whites to receive the benefits of this country, and not for an equal sharing of the pie.

1971 Off To Good Start

An increase in sales for the first month of 1971 as compared with the start of 1970 has been reported by three chain stores--J. C. Penney, Montgomery Ward and Sears, Roebuck.

Montgomery Ward said sales in January 1971, were 10.2 percent higher than in January, 1970. J. C. Penney sales were reported as 8.4 percent higher and Sears as 5.1 percent above.

All three chains reported increased volume for the year ending in January. Penney's reported a 9.8 percentage increase, with sales passing the $4 billion mark for the first time.

Sears' volume was 4.6 percent higher, exceeding $10
